

Questions

Husbands

1. Love edifies. How does a husband build up his wife?
2. Love is not a feeling, but a choice to act for the betterment of another. How can you love your wife even when you don't feel like it?
3. Compare how often you say, "I love you" to your wife with how often you demonstrate it. Does your wife enjoy hearing you say, "I love you!"?
4. Love is ultimately undone by selfishness. Are there things in your life that you simply will not give up for the betterment of your wife?
5. How does God love you?
6. What do you mean when you say, "I love you" to your wife?

Wives

1. Do you thank your husband for his love? For example, do you periodically say, "Thank you" when he says, "I love you" instead of just saying, "I love you too."
2. Even though loving you is your husband's primary responsibility in your marriage, do not forget that you are to love you husbands too (John 13:34).

Couples

1. List some examples of sacrificial acts in the realm of marriage that can be done without love.
2. Go through the characteristics of love found in 1 Corinthians 13 and talk about practical ways they are seen (or should be seen) in your marriage.
