

Questions

Husbands

1. What are the little foxes in your marriage right now?
2. Do you discount foxes you do not see but your wife does?
3. How well do you handle your wife bringing up problems in your marriage?
4. Are you willing to wait for the fruit to return that the foxes have destroyed?
5. Are you willing to tend your vineyard while you wait for the fruit to return?

Wives

1. What are the little foxes in your marriage right now?
2. Are you helping your husband identify the foxes in your marriage?
3. Are you willing to wait for the fruit to return that the foxes have destroyed?
4. Are you willing to tend your vineyard while you wait for the fruit to return?

Couples

1. Combine the lists from #1 above. With the husbands leading the way, lay out concrete Biblical plans for catching and killing the foxes.
2. If you have a good marriage (vineyard) the attacks (little foxes) will be plentiful and persistent. Lay out some basic plans on how you as a couple will identify, report, and catch foxes.
3. Read Isaiah 5:1-6 together. Take note of all that is done for the vineyard and correlate those tasks with your own vineyard (marriage). For example, pruning would be eliminating anything in your marriage that uses up God's resources but yields no fruit. In particular, <this activity> needs to be eliminated because it uses up our time without any eternal benefit.
